

Web Site Proposal

My proposal is for a site called "Meet Our Soldiers". I'm sure we all know someone who is in the military be it active duty, guard or reserves. But what about everyone else that is serving? The sad truth of it is that too many times all we see are the ones that have fallen. Though it is extremely important to recognize them, I would like to give a place for those still standing to be thanked as well. But how can you do that if you never have a chance to meet any of our military members? That's where Meet Our Soldiers comes in. I would like to have short bios with photos of some of our men and women. Ideally there would be a link to email so you can show your support or send any other comments. (Of course this will not be linked to actual emails for this class) I would like to have it set up where you could go through random bios, or search by base. There will also be a contact page to enable others to request information on how to get their bio added to the site. Though all military is equally important and play a crucial role, this will focus solely on Army in order to cut down on time so I can get it all accomplished throughout the time we have.

The client would be all Army personnel. Those that would like to receive comments from people, and possibly those looking for a pen pal while deployed. Target Audience is everyday people that would like to be able to thank or send support to our men and women that are serving our country.

I believe Flash could enhance this site immensely. I would like to use subtle animation, such as a waving flag.. as well as music in the background. For the music there will of course be a place for the user to mute or stop it if they would prefer not to hear it.
